If you do not have a grade C/4 in GCSE English or mathematics when you come to study with us, then you will be enrolled onto a course to help you improve in those areas. We have an excellent English and mathematics department to guide you through your GCSEs.

It may be that English and Mathematics have not worked out for you so far, but our staff are experts in teaching them to 16–18 year olds, so they build on the knowledge and skills that you already have, while approaching them in a fresh and engaging way. We know you have taken these GCSEs already, and you don't want the same lessons again, so we create lessons that will help you be better prepared to tackle the demands of the exams. These lessons will be built into your study programme at Worsley College.

Why do I need English and Mathematics?

English and mathematics are considered corner stones of education and training in the UK and level 2 in these subjects is considered a pre-requisite for many courses and careers. The skills required to do well in these subjects are valued highly, and that's why they are a necessary part of college study.

You will often hear that communication skills are vital in the modern workplace and it's through studying English language that you will develop these skills. If you read some text, do you know what the writer is trying to say? Can you infer meaning? Can you pick up on tone and compare it with a different one on the same subject?

Employers want people who can communicate effectively, but they also want people who can think logically and solve problems. That is, in essence, what mathematics is – problem solving. The skills you learn in mathematics are often useful in everyday life, but it's how you get the answer, rather than the answer itself that make mathematics qualifications so highly regarded.
